

YANK FLIERS FIRST TO CROSS THE ATLANTIC

NC-4 Reaches The Azores Islands
Safety On First Leg of Ocean Flight
With Two Others Close Behind It
—A Remarkable and Glorious Achievement For American Fliers.

(By Associated Press)
Ponta Delgada, Azores Islands, May 18.—With seaplane NC-4 leading, the three naval trans-Atlantic fliers completed two-thirds of their course from Trepassy to the Azores at 8:30 this morning.

At 1:25 P. M., Greenwich time, the NC-4 arrived at the Port of Horta in the Azores. It first sighted land at 11:35 this morning with the NC-1 close behind and the NC-3 passing Station 17.

"LAME DUCK" LED THE WAY
(By Associated Press)
Washington, May 17.—The American naval seaplane NC-4 under Lieutenant Commander Read attained its first objective in its trans-Atlantic flight, having landed safely at Horta, Island of Fayal, Azores at 9:20 Washington time, this morning, after winding its way across the Atlantic from Newfoundland in 15 hours and 13 minutes. The NC-1 and the NC-3 were then approximately 100 miles away.

Lieutenant Commander Read reached Horta several hours ahead of his schedule, officials having estimated that 20 hours would be required to reach, Ponta Delgada, in face of the fact that the NC-4 was the "lame duck" of the division from the time it started from Rockaway Beach, Long Island. It landed twice to make repairs on the way to Trepassy and later installed three new motors. Despite these handicaps, it led the way to the Azores practically all night but the machine which achieves the distinction of being the first to cross the Atlantic will be that which arrives at Lisbon, Portugal first, the European landing place of the flight, and then starting for the last leg to Plymouth, England.

While the performance of the NC-4 is viewed as the most spectacular in the history of heavier-than-air craft, yet it equalled the American navy record for neither duration nor distance. The greatness of its feat is said to lie in the fact that the flight was entirely over water.

Story of the Wonderful Flight
Trepassy, New Foundland, May 17.—When the giant American hydro-aeroplanes sped away into the east, over the Grand Banks and the broad Atlantic they entered upon a course not only carefully charted, but patrolled by rescue and repair ships all the way to the Portuguese coast.

Looking upon the cruise not as a sporting venture, nor as an attempt merely to win for the United States the honor of the first trans-Atlantic air flight, but as an undertaking for the advancement of science and seamanship, the American Navy placed its own vast resources at the disposal of the aviators, and enlisted those of other government departments in an effort to assure the safety of the crews and to reduce to a minimum the element of chance in the project.

A flotilla of destroyers, reinforced by battleships and cruisers, were to pick up messages from the fliers in case the radio sets of the smaller vessels failed to function, served as channels of communication between the fliers while the planes were proceeding to their base here. The fleet will remain in station until the birds have completed the flight, and then will give aid which would make possible resumption of its journey by a plane put out of commission by a minor mishap.

The patrol fleet, in wireless contact throughout its length and in touch with the United States Weather Bureau, as well as with the various nationalities crossing the Middle Atlantic, will keep the aviators posted on weather conditions in the areas they are approaching, and co-operate with the navigators aboard the planes in directing the flight.

"Give us no luck, good or bad, and the trans-oceanic voyage should be made without trouble," said Commander John H. Towers, chief of the expedition, commenting before the "hop off" on the completion of the navy's preparations. "We are not undertaking the impossible, we are not banking on chance. We are attempting a flight wholly within the mechanical possibilities of the N.C. planes, hoping to demonstrate, without reckless risk of life or valuable property, that an air cruise to Europe is a practical proposition."

One of Commander Towers' brother officers declared that a new branch of the science of navigation was being opened up around the N.C. planes, thus making the flight an undertaking expected to contribute materially to the advancement of the profession of the sea. Giant strides have been made in developing the use of the flight and weather charts to be used on the flight and the use of the steering and weather charts expected to accomplish worthwhile results in the experiments above blue water.

The naval aircraft, the N.C.—N.C.—3 and N.C.—4, huge flying boats which ascend from a "take off" in the water and "land" also on the surface of the sea are driven by Liberty motors four to a plane and aggregating 1,500 horsepower. They are of the biplane type, with a wing span of 135 feet, length over all 55 feet and height of hull, 44 feet. The craft weigh 15,000 pounds, with navigating and wireless equipment aboard, but without crew and fuel. The total flying weight is 24,500 pounds.

The planes have a dual control system, with seats side by side and forward of the gasoline tank, for the pilot, each of whom has a complete set of instruments, including compasses. The navigating station, outfitted with regulation marine instruments, is in the bow, while the engineer and radio operator occupy the main compartment at the tanks. The planes are expected to cruise, without wind, 75 (and) miles an hour and the gasoline capacity of 11,400 pounds will carry them up to 1,500 miles, considerably in excess of the longest lap of the ocean without refueling.

With Commander Towers in charge, it is expected the three planes will be in command of Mr. Towers, Lieutenant Commander Read, and Lieutenant Commander Read.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE WELL KNOWN HERE

Perhaps the best locally known man on the republican state ticket endorsed for nomination this week is Hon. James A. Wallace, of Estill county, a brother of Hon. C. C. Wallace, of Richmond. Mr. Wallace often visits Richmond and has many warm friends here. In its sketches of the republican candidates, the Lexington Leader had the following about Mr. Wallace which will be read with interest by his friends here:

The selection of James A. Wallace, banker, and prominent business man, of Irvine, Estill county, for the nomination for State Treasurer, was a happy one for several reasons. In the first place he is an able and successful financier; secondly, he is widely known and popular, with the rank and file of the Republican party and thirdly, it was a deserved recognition of the Republicans of the upper Kentucky River Valley, who have always loyally supported the Republican State ticket. Mr. Wallace is cashier of the Farmers' Bank of Estill county, at Irvine, and has aided materially in the development of the industry in his section. For several years he was circuit clerk of Estill county, and carried the county by such a decisive majority, that he was later put forward by his friends for the Republican nomination of State Treasurer four years ago at the Louisville convention but which he lost by a very narrow margin. With the pluck and courage which has been one of his dominant characteristics thru life, however, and strongly believing, in the maxim "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again," he has "come back" and his friends believe that this time his ambition will be fully rewarded at the November election, when he will be declared by the voters the next State Treasurer. Mr. Wallace, who is a brother to the Hon. C. C. Wallace, of Richmond, for years one of the prominent Republican leaders of Madison county, frequently mentioned for Congress in the Eighth district, has been active in Republican politics in his section for the past decade, and has been a delegate from this district to several national Republican conventions. He is regarded as one of the strongest candidates on the State ticket.

Red Cross Notes

Mrs. W. H. Grider, who has charge of the Civilian Relief of Madison county chapter, R. C., has turned the business over to Major Stone Norman who will attend to it during Mrs. Grider's temporary absence from the city.

Major Norman is well qualified for this work, his large acquaintance among the enlisted men making him especially efficient. His office will be in the Oldham building on Main street. Every soldier or sailor having insurance or compensation matters for adjustment or disabled men, please call on him there.

ROCKCASTLE MAN PARDONED

Boyd Kelley, of Rockcastle, county, convicted in April, 1918, for manslaughter and sent to the penitentiary for twenty-one years, was pardoned by Governor Stanley. He killed Luther Shipman, the killing growing out of a mine strike.

Commander A. C. Read and Lieutenant Commander P. N. L. Bellinger, Commander Towers, who is thirty-four years of age, was born in Georgia and entered the Naval Academy in 1902. After service on various warships he was assigned to the aviation section for instruction three years before the outbreak of the European war. Midwinter of 1913 found him in charge of the aviation camp at Quantico, where he was in command of the maneuver grounds of the Atlantic fleet, and in September, 1914, as a lieutenant, he went to London as assistant to the American naval attaché.

After a tour of duty on the staff of the chief of operations at Washington, during which he participated in the studies of aviation, he was assigned to his commission as commander. Mr. Towers was designated early this year to develop the plans for the trans-Atlantic flight.

Lieutenant Commander Read, 33 years of age, was born in New Hampshire. After leaving Annapolis he served in the aviation section at the naval air station at Pensacola, Fla., for instruction. Two years later he took command of the aviation station at Key West, on Long Island, later assuming a similar post at Miami, Fla. While on the staff of chief of naval operations at Washington, the following year he was detached for temporary duty in connection with the camouflage of seaplanes in the Gulf of Mexico, later holding changing assignments until he was named for participation in the trans-Atlantic flight.

Lieutenant Commander Bellinger, born in South Carolina 33 years ago, went from the Naval Academy to sea duty, which included command of a submarine. He returned to the Academy for aviation instruction in 1912, and the following year joined the Guantanamo air squadron. After service in 1914 on the staff of the chief of naval operations, he was assigned to the Pensacola station, where he was promoted to the command of the Pensacola Roads aviation camp, in which he later reported in 1917. He was on detached duty at the department duty when he was selected as one of the trans-Atlantic fliers.

The fliers, who are from New York, Arkansas, Utah, Florida and Texas, with Rear Admiral Rodman's flag flying from the first named, are at sea with the detachment of the Navy's fleet, the USS. ## REAL MUSICAL TREASURE HERE NEXT WEEK

The Richmond and Madison county people are to have a real musical treat when the May Festival is given May 22 and 23. There will be three programs, Thursday evening the program will consist of selections by the chorus and orchestra, and Philharmonic String Quartet.

It has been said by those who have heard the orchestra in practice that this evening's program "will be well worth the price of the season ticket." The Normal School Orchestra will be re-inforced by the chorus and orchestra, and Philharmonic String Quartet.

On Friday afternoon the children of the primary grades of the Model School will give a program which is followed by the cantata "The Walrus and the Carpenter," given by the upper grades of the school. The above will be interesting to all. On Friday evening "The Crusaders" will be presented. This work is based upon facts and will be given by the chorus and soloists with full orchestra accompaniment.

Dr. Myers has been most fortunate in securing the solo artists as will appear in the leading parts on Friday evening. Miss Alice Metcalf does not need an introduction to the musical circles of this community. She has a voice of rare beauty and wonderful range. She has been likened to one of the noted opera singers in that when her high notes are heard all pronounce her a soprano and when her low notes so rich and full are heard, all declare her a contralto. Her graceful manner has endeared her to the Richmond people.

She graduated with honor at the College of Music in Cincinnati and was awarded the gold medal prize in a class of sixty.

Mr. Walter Vaughan is well known in the concert world. He received his entire musical education in America and has received the highest honors and gold medals from the College of Music in Cincinnati. He has toured the southern, Eastern and middle western states as recitalist and oratorio soloist. One of the newspaper clippings said after a recital of Vaughan that he was "a voice of adequate range, vibrant quality and great suavity. He sings with great assurance and was received with great applause."

All will be delighted to hear Mr. Earl Weatherford. He comes highly recommended. The part of Peter the Hermit in "The Crusaders" is very difficult and Mr. Weatherford renders this part exceptionally. He has a baritone voice of wide range and is well known in the musical world through his performance of the leading role in Rigoletto.

The music lovers of this community and especially the local clubs, are greatly indebted to Dr. Myers for giving them so rare an opportunity as the May Festival of next Thursday and Friday affords.

BLACK OPENS HIS FIGHT HERE TODAY

Next Governor of Kentucky Begins His
Speaking Campaign For Democratic Governatorial Nomination.

The next Governor of Kentucky is speaking to the voters of Madison county this afternoon as the Daily Register goes to press. On Monday, the 19th Lieut. Gov. James D. Black formerly becomes chief executive of the commonwealth by the virtue of the resignation of Gov. Stanley who goes to the senate at Washington. So, whether Lieut. Gov. Black is nominated or elected this fall for a full term in the gubernatorial chair, the above statement still holds good.

His speech today is the opening in his campaign for the nomination and election, and it is peculiarly fitting that Gov. Black should come to Richmond to deliver this address, few candidates who have gone before the people have ever had so strong a hold upon the democracy of Madison county as Gov. Black, and unless there should be some remarkable change in the sentiment of the people here before August 2nd, it now seems certain that he will carry this county by a large majority over all of his opponents.

There is a good crowd in town to attend the opening of his campaign. All brought reports that Gov. Black is very strong in their several communities. With Tom Rhea out of the running, predictions are being freely made by the friends of Gov. Black that he will receive more votes in the primary than all of the other candidates combined.

Attorney W. H. H. Reynolds, of Stanford, headed the Lincoln county delegation to the speaking. Mr. Reynolds is campaigning for Gov. Black in Lincoln. He said that Gov. Black will sweep Lincoln by an overwhelming majority both in the primary and in the regular election. Others here from Lincoln were Editor E. C. Walton of the Interior Journal and Deputy Internal Revenue Collector Rowan Sauffley.

Gov. Black's address began at too late an hour for the Daily Register to give the meat if it in today's issue but it hopes to be able to give its salient features Monday. As the governor did not reach town until 1 o'clock, the Daily Register was unable to obtain an advance copy of his speech.

GINGER EXTRACT HELD TO BE INTOXICATING

Druggists and soft drink establishments which are selling a ginger extract containing about 90 percent alcohol had better look out, if the higher courts sustain a decision of the Richmond court this week that such a drink is intoxicating, and subjects the seller to a charge of violating the local option law. It is said that cases of sale of this drink which have so far come before the authorities, have been those who innocently did so, not aware of the intoxicating qualities of this beverage.

Florham Leader, a two-months-old Guernsey calf, was sold at auction at Madison Wis., this week for $25,000, said to be a new record price for any animal of its breed.
